

Yelp — How to give Adverton access

What this is for: if your plan includes Yelp management, Adverton claims and runs your Yelp Business listing — keeping photos, hours, services, and review responses up to date. To do that we need user-level access to your Yelp Business account. Yelp matters most in Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, and Boston — that's where we strongly recommend it. In other metros, GBP carries most of the weight.

Time required: 5 minutes if you have a Yelp Business account, 10 if you need to claim/create one.

What you'll need: - The email tied to your Yelp Business account (if you have one — many contractors don't realize they do).

Path A — You already have a Yelp Business account

Step 1 — Log in

Go to biz.yelp.com and sign in.

Step 2 — Find Account Settings

Top-right corner: click your initials/avatar → Account Settings.

Step 3 — Go to Users

Step 4 — Add Adverton

Click Add User (or Invite User). Fill in: - Email: manager@adverton.net - Role: Manager (or Admin if "Manager" isn't offered — we need to edit business info, respond to reviews, and update photos).

Click Send Invite.

Step 5 — Confirm

Reply to your kickoff email: "Yelp invite sent." We accept within a few hours and confirm in writing.

Important: if Yelp asks whether to grant "Billing access" — say No. Manager-only is enough. Billing stays in your hands.

Path B — You don't have a Yelp Business account

There are two scenarios here. Try Step 1 first — it tells you which one applies.

Step 1 — Search for your business

Open yelp.com (the consumer site, not the business one). In the search bar, type your business name + city.

- Result A — Your business shows up: Yelp auto-created a page for you (this happens to most contractors). It's "unclaimed." → Go to "Path B-1: Claim the existing page."
- Result B — Nothing shows up: Yelp has no record. → Go to "Path B-2: Create from scratch."

Path B-1 — Claim the existing unclaimed page

1. On the Yelp page that appeared in the search, scroll down to the section labeled "Is this your business?" Click Claim this business.
2. Yelp asks you to verify ownership. Pick the verification method offered (usually a phone call to your business number with a 6-digit code, or an email to a business address).
3. Once verified, you're now logged into biz.yelp.com with full owner access. Go back to Path A — Step 2 above to add Adverton.

Path B-2 — Create from scratch

1. Go to biz.yelp.com → click Create your free account or Add your business.
2. Fill in the basic info: business name, address, phone, hours, category (HVAC, plumbing, etc.).
3. Verify by phone or email when prompted.
4. Once your account is active, follow Path A — Steps 2–5 to add Adverton as Manager.

Both paths are free. Yelp does NOT require you to buy ads to claim or manage your business listing. Anyone who tells you otherwise is selling something.

What happens next

Once we have access: - Week 1: we audit and clean up the listing — categories, services, hours, description, 5–10 photos, business specialties. - Ongoing: we respond to every review (positive AND negative) within 48 hours, update photos quarterly, post offers monthly. - You'll see review activity in your monthly report. Yelp doesn't have rich analytics like Google does — the metrics that matter are review count, average rating, and response rate, all tracked.

Common issues

"Yelp keeps calling me to sell me ads. Should I take them?" No. Yelp Ads have a poor reputation among home service contractors — high cost per qualified lead, and most contractors we talk to who tried them turned them off within 90 days. Stick to organic Yelp management; spend your ad budget on Google LSA instead. (If you ever want a full breakdown, ask us — we have the math on Yelp Ads vs. Google LSA for your trade and metro.)

"My Yelp listing has 1-star reviews from years ago I can't get rid of." Yelp's policy on review removal is strict — only fake/abusive reviews get removed. What we do instead is bury the bad ones with response strategy + new positive reviews. Within 60 days of starting, your average rating typically moves up because (a) we respond well to every review and (b) we drive new review volume from your happy recent jobs.

"I have a Yelp account but the email tied to it is from a former employee." Reach out to Yelp support directly: www.yelp-support.com/Business_Owner → Account → Recover access. They'll ask for proof of business ownership (license, utility bill). Takes 3–7 days. Once you regain control, follow Path A.

"My business shows up on Yelp but the address is wrong." Common — Yelp pulls from public databases that are often outdated. Once we have access, we fix it within a day. Don't worry about correcting it before granting us access; we'll handle it.
